

Glen Dario Rodriguez

Glen D. Rodriguez received a B.S. in System Engineering from Universidad Nacional de Ingeniería, Lima, Peru, in 1994, an Ms.Eng. in Information and Computer Science Engineering from Toyohashi University of Technology, Toyohashi, Japan in 2001, and a Dr.Eng. in Electronic and Information Engineering at Toyohashi University of Technology, Toyohashi, Japan in 2004. From 2006 he worked as a lecturer and later, a professor at Universidad Nacional de Ingeniería, Lima, Peru. From 2008 Glen D. Rodriguez has been involved in the cubesat project of this University being responsible for the Ground Station. Glen D. Rodriguez's research interests include evolutionary algorithms, parallel processing, mobile communication, and electromagnetic waves propagation and scattering.