

Igor Belokonov

Igor Belokonov has Ph.D. in technological sciences at Samara State Aerospace University, the theory of optimal planning of Satellite radio navigation for remote sensing Spacecraft.

Present position: Head of Department of Space Research, Professor of Dynamics Flight and Control Systems of Samara State Aerospace University, General Director of Samara Scientific Center of Space Technologies.

Public position: Vice President and Executive Director of Volga Branch of Russian Academy of Cosmonautics (2004), Academician of Russian Academy of Cosmonautics (1997), Academician of International Academy for Navigating and Motion Control (2006), Foreign Member of “Institute of Navigation” (USA) (1998-2002). Igor Belokonov was Coordinator of various International Science Meetings and Conferences:

AGARD NATO “Applications of Satellite Navigations” (1998), “Research and Technology Experiments on Recoverable Spacecraft Foton/Bion” (2000, 2001)), International Conference of RACTs/IAA “Scientific and Technological Experiments on Automated Space Vehicles and Small Satellite” (2008, 2011).