

Panasyuk Oleg

Panasyuk Oleg (1957), a former military and space forces officer. Worked on assembly and testing of cryogenic fuel charging systems, barochambers and thermostating systems of BURAN and ZENIT launch systems, ZENIT flight tests.

Worked on projects of upgrading SOYUZ launch systems with cryogenic fuel charging systems, overhaul of the technological equipment of CYCLON launch complex and the subsequent flight tests. After retiring from the military worked in the marketing business.

From May 2008 till present – Deputy executive director of the International Association of Space Activities Participants (IASP). Manages the projects “The virtual museum of Astronautics” and “Ask an astronaut a question”. Coordinates a number of other projects aimed at improving the competitiveness of the Russian space enterprises in the international space services market.